NaMu III: National museums in a global world

This note will give you a heads up on what you can expect from the conference in Oslo. Firstly, there is a brief description of the contents of each day, followed by a travel description. A more detailed programme, along with the list of sessions, is listed in the end of the note.

This third NaMu conference deals specifically with how diversities and differences are negotiated in an increasingly globalized world and how this presents contemporary challenges to national museums. In order to give this perspective, the Oslo conference will have three different kinds of activities: Key note speakers, paper presentations in sessions and opportunities for exploring national and local museums in Oslo engaged in questions relating to globalization and multicultural challenges.

The conference will be held in three different places in the course of three days:

- 19th Nov: The Norwegian Museum of Cultural History (Norsk Folkemuseum)
- 20th Nov: The University of Oslo, Blindern Campus
- 21st Nov: IKM; Intercultural Museum (Interkulturelt museum)

Clarion Hotel Royal Christiania

The hotel is located only 100 meters from Oslo Central Station. At the last page of the document there is a map called 1 Oslo Centrum: The hotel is marked as 1 and Oslo Central Station as 2.

19th Nov: The Norwegian Museum of Cultural History

The Norwegian Museum of Cultural History objective is to let you experience and learn about traditional Norwegian culture and history through indoor exhibitions and their open-air

Museum. The open-air museum features 155 buildings from different national regions. The museum was founded in 1894.

The conference starts in house of the Collett family, one of the buildings featured in the open-air museum. After lunch and registrations the conference will be opened by Professor Arne Bugge Amundsen. The first day will consist of one key note speech, sessions and a dinner.

The key note speaker will be by curator Thomas Michael Walle. Being a social anthropologist, Walle has been employed by the Norwegian Museum of Cultural History specifically to focus on problems around presenting the multicultural other.

Walle will give a speech on the topic: “Cultural diversity at Norsk Folkemuseum: Who are the objects, subjects and consumers at a multicultural museum?” The key note speech will be the foundation for an excursion and the study of one of the museums exhibition: "OBOS-gården" – a block of flats from 15 Wesselsstreet, Oslo: A Pakistani home in Norway (2002). The exhibition is a (re)construction of a Pakistani immigrant family home from 2002.

Travel route

The easiest way to get to the museum is to take buss no 30 to Bygdøy from Kirkeristen (3), 100 meters from the hotel (1). Se map 1 Oslo Centrum on the last page. The bus takes about 20 minutes and stops outside Folkemuseet. Once inside you'll get a ticket and map at the boxoffice at you left hand side.

20th Nov: The University of Oslo, Blindern Campus

The University of Oslo is Norway's largest and oldest institution of higher education, founded in 1811. In the 1960s, the Greater Blindern area was developed. This area is today associated by most people as the centre of the University of Oslo. The administration, welfare services, humanities, social sciences and natural sciences buildings are located here. The second day will be formed by two key note speeches, sessions and a dinner at the academic club.

The first key note will be by former Director, and Professor of Museum Studies at the University of Toronto, Mr David-Thierry Ruddel. He will give a speech on: “The museum mirror: European reflections in the new and old worlds”

As a historian, and a former curator of two national museums, the theme concerning the past and present situations of museums is an important focus in Mr. Ruddel's speech.

The second key note of the day will be given by professor Saphinaz Amal Naguib from the University of Oslo. Naguib will give a speech on: "The One, the Many and the Other.

Revisiting Cultural Diversity in Museums of Cultural History"

Naguib is a faculty professor of Cultural History/Cultural Analysis and has a special focus on cultural contacts, continuity and change, cultural and religious memory and museology.

Travel route

The easiest way to get to Blindern is by taking the westbound subway from Oslo Central Station (2). Numbers 3, 4 and 5 stop at Blindern (4). The conference is being held only a short walk from Blindern subway station (5). Auditorium 2 at the right hand side is ours for the day. Look at map 2 at the last page.

21st Nov: IKM; Intercultural Museum

IKM works from a multicultural standpoint. The focal point of IKM's work is the history of immigrants and the cultural change in the Norwegian society. The third day will be formed by a key note speech and a tour of IKM's newest exhibition. The day finishes off with a lunch.

The key note speech will be held by Anders Bettum, who is MA in history of religion, and the architect behind the new exhibition; Our Sacred rooms. The exhibition presents the religious diversity and appropriation in Oslo through the sacred rooms of Norway's minority religions. The rooms presented are a Catholic church, an Orthodox synagogue, a Pakistani mosque, a Tamil Hindu temple, a Vietnamese Buddhist temple and a Sikh Gurdwara.

Keywords are minorities, Diaspora and religion.

Travel route

All the participants will walk from the hotel to IKM under the guidance of Richard. The walk takes about 10 minutes.
